A"Craze" to be Encouraged.

The success of the pronouncing match at the Opera House Fridday evening is a Sin:—The following re audience was so highly pleased and Burton, September 18, 1885: edified that the entertainment will surely platform and pronounce audibly were heard to utter sotto voce the words given the contestants. The majority of these pronunciations doubtless agreed with those of the pronouncer on the stage, right or wrong, for local usage is apt to be pretated at the dark of the pronouncer on the stage, right or wrong, for local usage is apt to be pretated at the dark of the pronouncer of the stage. bronuciations doubtless agreed with those of the pronouncer on the stage, right or wrong, for local usage is apt to be pretty uniform. In some cases signs of general protest could be seen in the audience when some familiar utterance of a word was declared to be wrong. This was especially so with "exemplary," which was given with the sharp x sound and with the accent on the "em." The judge's pronunciation, "egg'em-plery," was greeted with a murmur of disapproval; yet there is no authority for any other pronunciation. "Aggrandize" was also a word which evidently the majority in the house were accustomed to mispronounce, and "apotheosis" another.

The desirability of a general familiarity with the proper utterance of such words is apparent, and nothing so quickly attracts attention to a popular error as its correction in the public presence.

The difficulty experienced in the pronunciation of "alternate," "Asiatic," "bombast," "bronchitis," "brooch," "buoy," "cayenne" and others as common, by persons who are admitted to be well informed above the average, illustrates forcibly the necessity for an occasional drill. Words in which long u occurs almost invariably gloored the content of the proper content of the propersional drill. Seventh—That we extend our thanks to testants. Why such a word as "tubular" should be called "toob-you-lar" is is difficult to conjecture, yet the distinction between the two long u's, which should be sounded alike, is very generally made. "Elusive," "enthusism" were other words of this class that were nfispronounced. It is probable that had the word testants. Why such a word as "tubular" ed. It is probable that had the word "new" been given before attention was directed to this sound, it would have been missed. The proportion of people who call this word "noo" to those who properly say "nu" is large. Yet nobody calls

"pew" "poo." Analogy, to be sure, is not always a safe guide; else "amenity" and "amenable" would not present the arbitrary difference in the e of the second syllable. This is but one instance which suggests itself among many which exist, and this peculi-arity of the language increases the neces-sity of constant practice in the pronuncia-tion of words.

Let us hope that the "crare" will become epidemic, and rage until it has accomplished much good.

Too Bich for Patti's Blood. Teresto Mail.

It is fearful to think what an enormous a child. She would have to sing it to sleep every night for about three years, and at the regular rates this would amount to $5,000,000. Then, if ahe would have to sing one or two extra verses to it each nicht, the amount would rise to $7,500,000,000. Then, if ahe would have to sing one or two extra verses to it each nicht, the amount would rise to $7,500,000,000. The foolish excesses of so-called temperance people constantly tend to defeat night for 365 days, say five hours at a time. Four thousand dollars for a few minutes' singing is her usual price. One night of aickness would, therefore, cost $240,000,

THE WEEKLY TIPLILIZENCES, present the control of th

his own responsibility. If he will just stop to think he will realize that Council has not been very happy in affairs of this kind. He will doubtless remember that a police matter in which Council had jurisdiction was contemptuously referred to the Committee on Elections, and that as an investigation that particular episode was a disgrace.

When the INTELLIGENCER began its own inquiry it gave notice that Council would not be troubled by this newspaper. There is no reason to change front now. If Council desires to make inquiry on its own account, the field is open. The INTELLIGENCER has all the materiat it wants in the Burns case and has no occasion to look further. What has appeared in these columns is true, by carefal inquiry ascertained to be true, and published as a putlic duty because there was no other way to accomplish the same public end.

This much done, the reputable taxpayers of this city will want to know if there is no escape from maintaining on the police force in their peculiar kind of luxarious ease such fellows as Burns. And if the Chief of Police does not dismiss an officer of the Burns kind, the people will naturally want to know why.

be repeated, and unlike some of the county, do pass the following resolutions: recent popular crazes, this one cannot be indulged to too great an extent. If there were any doubt as to the desirability of some means of interesting the general public in the art of properly speaking the English language, it must have been removed by the contest referred to, for it was there developed that m-ny of the words in common use are often mispronounced.
